

April 6, 2006

I think WalMart's has too much control now and to also want Banks is just going to far. They will run other Banks out of communities where people like you and I have relied on for years. I believe WalMarts poses a great threat in its attempt to have so much power. It is very important for the board of directors of the FDIC to attend this meeting and hear first hand what WalMart propose's. WalMart's has come into towns and closed stores that have served towns successfully for years. I live in northern Ca. on the lower mts. of the sierras in a small town and my neighboring towns are also small but you can drive in three different directions and there are four WalMarts, two within a fifteen min. drive and now they are going to build one here on the ridge where I live which has been serviced by K-Mart and private shops for many years. Enough is enough. Greed is the foundation they (WalMart) have built their stores on. Just look into the wealth of the Walton's women . Thank you for reading my letter

Janice Moore